

Young Zempfira

Heart of Fire

Philip Parzygnat & Tamara Harbedia

Young Zemfira

Heart of Fire

In memory of one and the story of one other Zemfira.

This is a short work in memory of two amazing young women that tragically passed away in NYC chasing adventure with hearts of fire.

Both of your stories are remembered.

Remember, there has to be a reason to fall in love.

Chapter 1

Love is very fragile when it is rare, but very wild when we set love free.

Chapter 1

NYC was the only city in the world where love couldn't vanish and love is so rare. So what is love? Well, in women it may be the spells they set free by being who they are, by what they value in others, in the men they inspire. There was a young Zemfira that cast such a spell, a spell for us to appreciate.

Zemfira didn't understand everything but she didn't have to because all that matters is heart. All that matters is what we believe in and that is all Zemfira ever lived by. God can only bless the wild ones because the wild ones are the only ones that will ever inspire change.

We can be wild in thoughts or actions, it is usually wild thoughts and actions that drive good spirit in others.

NYC is a world in and of itself. It is an environment. We go to school. We go to work. We go out with friends. We go to movies. We go to the beach. Central Park, Prospect Park, all the other boroughs. We can go to places that only the greatest cities make possible.

With all that, our lives are complex, just as complex when we are young as when we are old. Once we start to walk around NYC and sense our world is not perfect, we start to wonder why. The problem usually is that the wonder has no answers and adventure has no limits. We shut down all the problems and try to escape that life because it is not meant for anyone. We are all meant to live beautiful lives. Zemfira shut down the darkness and followed the craziest light.

Let's not talk about NYC too much yet. Let's talk about a heart of fire that children all over the world develop because they believe in more than we do.

Someone once told me that there is no heart of fire without struggle, without suffering, without cold water. I guess as we grow old we all start to realize how true this is.

Zemfira didn't have time to deal with anything like that. She was just too good to be bothered with other people's darkness.

It was all about adventure and so that is how we return from the world out there to NYC. Parents know that too much freedom is not enough, but honestly, maybe it is. What good are we ever going to do, if we follow in the footsteps of others. Doing good things takes a leader. What most people don't understand is that no one has to follow, we can all lead. Zemfira saw a world where we all lead. A world where we are all free and appreciated for being who we are.

So, a young Zemfira, inspired a young Zemfira. Who is this young Zemfira that Zemfira inspired. Well we will continue this work by looking into the life of a young woman that learned to be adventureless, not because she didn't have a heart of fire, but because she heard the story of the Zemfira that inspired her.

Zemfira was born in Forest Hills. As a young girl her mother and father told her the story of a NYC legend, the girl that they named her after.

Let's talk a little about her parents. Her father was as wild as her mother. There was no reason in NYC for them to survive but there is no reason in the world to be certain of anything. At least not in this story.

A city that never sleeps belongs to everyone.

Chapter 2

So, Zemfira was a legend but also a dream of a daughter in her name for some that understood her amazing story.

Let's talk NYC. It all starts with children and their wild spirits. Danger is always mixed in and boys usually don't realize what life is about until it is too late.

So, crazy, all over the world, there are commuting systems, every major city has them. In NYC, graffiti artists popularized surfing on trains as part of a spray paint culture. We live our legends and always, always we have to think about what we popularize as older kids because the younger kids are free in spirit and strong at heart.

Catch me if you can, because I love you, some women say to some men. So sometimes guys get it. NYC is looking for that moment all guys get it.

Children already have all that worked out, they know way more than they should and gotta deal with that.

So, in Forest Hills, that Zemfira, kinda like figuring it all out. That's all we can do as kids.

So maybe freedom is not always the answer. Freedom gives birth to spirit and heart but also they are all just kids and adults should respect that.

That was a heart of fire, that asked us for more and we can't provide more because we have work to do in this world.

So there there was an amazing story in NYC and there is also hope. We'll get there as this story falls into place.

The only stage in this world is the stage where kiddie love lasts forever (foreva) and all kids fall in love.

Chapter 3

Hope comes with character and leadership. So who needs to figure out how to be a leader. Well we all do. We all have to set an example. Being wild is the greatest of blessings but breaking the hearts of others is not what we are trying to achieve.

We should all take the time to set a good example to the younger generations. We are all leaders.

NYC has driven or maybe influenced the world with respect to culture and creativity for quite some time. We should make our creativity set an example. We want the good trends to be more powerful than the bad trends.

It may sound like good trends are harder to ignite than bad trends but this is not true. There is one challenge, we all have to work together to make good trends overpower bad trends. We can't do this unless we do this collectively to give our children a world of excitement that they get to enjoy as adults after they enjoy the world as kids.
